

The Real Estate Council of Alberta's (RECA) mandate is to protect consumers and to provide services that enhance and improve the industry and the business of industry professionals. As a self-regulatory body, one of RECA's responsibilities is to carry out investigations into the conduct of industry professionals and take disciplinary action when necessary.

RECA has developed two guides, the Guide to Complaints: Industry Professionals, and the Guide to Investigations for Complainants, to assist complainants in understanding their role in RECA's complaint review and investigations process. Before completing this complaint form, please review the following points as it will assist you in understanding the complaint process and what will happen after you have submitted your complaint.

- RECA will promptly acknowledge your complaint and will provide you with regular updates as your complaint moves forward;
- You have the choice to communicate with RECA in writing (i.e. regular mail) or in electronic form (i.e. email);
- RECA staff will respond to your inquiries promptly and professionally;
- RECA will deal with your complaint solely based on the evidence, without partiality, discrimination or prejudice;
- Depending on the seriousness of the action that led to your complaint, RECA may recommend that you meet with the industry professional about whom you have complained and his or her broker in an attempt to resolve your concerns;
- RECA will provide you with an explanation of any investigation and/or disciplinary outcome(s); and,
- RECA will advise you of any appeal rights you may have.

In order for you to make a complaint to RECA, RECA will need:

- Your personal information;
- Your communication preferences;
- The name of the industry professional who is the subject of your complaint;
- To know if there have been prior resolution efforts made between you and the industry professional and/or his or her broker;
- To know if you are willing to have your complaint information shared with other organizations that may also be interested in dealing with your complaint;
- Details of your complaint (timeline, particulars, etc.);
- Copies of documents that support your complaint, and witness names and contact information; and,
- Your commitment to the complaint evaluation and investigation process.

This form is to be used for making a complaint against an individual who is authorized by RECA. If you want to make a complaint about a person who is not authorized by RECA but who you believe requires an authorization, please use the applicable Complaint Form – Unauthorized Practice.
